

Master of Science in Global Health

- Combines public health with integrative medicine
- Emphasizes health disparities and social justice
- Offers fieldwork to hone skills locally or internationally

The Master of Science in Global Health (MScGH) degree is designed for students who desire to understand the complexity of global health challenges and contribute to solutions in a meaningful way.

Why NUNM?

- A public health perspective that includes traditional medicines and a holistic approach
- Ongoing and sustainable relationships with government agencies and medical schools in Argentina, Ghana, Nicaragua, Peru, Thailand and Tanzania
- Strong ties to local community clinics and Portland-based nonprofit organizations for learning opportunities

Coursework includes:

- Medical Anthropology
- Leadership Development
- Maternal and Child Health
- Psychology of Connection

Contact Admissions to learn more:

503.552.1660 or 877.669.8737 | admissions@nunm.edu

nunm.edu | Portland, Oregon

Follow us:

